To our list of services, starting November 1st, 2010

Acupuncture began with the discovery that stimulating specific areas on the skin affect the physiological functioning of the body's many neurological and chemical processes.

It has evolved into a proven scientific system of healing that restores and maintains health by the stimulation of specific anatomical points or on the body using a variety of techniques.

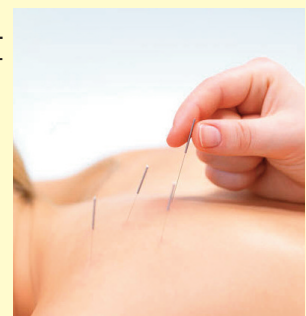

Acupuncture points are places on the body that stimulate nerves, muscles and connective tissue. This stimulation functions to boost the activity of your body's natural painkillers and increase blood flow.

Complimentary 20 minute consultations designed to answer any questions you may have are now available.
